

Dear ICHEP participant,

We will be greatly be honored to welcome the President of the French Republic, Nicolas Sarkozy, to officially open our conference on Monday July 26 at noon.

For obvious security reasons, this will have some impact on the conference:

0) The most important thing is that you must BRING WITH YOU AN ID CARD with a photograph and your badge. (The formalities will be quite similar to those at an airport)

1) The program has been adjusted. Please check the updated version on the conference website.

The first talk at 9 am will be given by Steve Myers on the LHC. The LHCb status and results talk will be postponed at 2 pm and the afternoon program will shift by half an hour.

2) The President address will be given in French. Simultaneous translation will be available through headsets that will be given to you inside the Auditorium. PLEASE, make sure to give them back when you leave since it will cost us quite a lot if you don't. (French speaking participants, please, do not take one!)

3) Make sure to arrive in advance Monday morning (8:45 am at the latest) since getting into the Auditorium will take some time due to the security screening.

4) The President address will be webcast, as all conference plenary sessions. Please feel free to forward this information to your friends!

Thank you very much for your collaboration!

Cheers,
